Part 1 - Design and Wireframes

Part 1 - Use Design Thinking to Understand User Needs

User Personas

1. Foreign students who seek social engagement. Feeling slightly lonely from being away from their friends back home, they see a screening as a nice opportunity to engage in pre and post movie conversation, hoping to make new local friends.
2. Amateur movie bloggers/critics who seek new material as well as a venue where they can meet with fellow hobbyists, hoping to promote their own work and learn from the work of others.
3. Movie enthusiasts seeking to widen their horizon by having others pick what they are to watch this week. Feeling a little bored with their regular genres (due to overconsumption), they see ITU.film as an opportunity for enlightenment, hoping to find renewed joy in their hobby.

AEIOU: Identify Activities, Environments, Interactions, Objects and Users

A movie blogger hobbyist is at home alone. She is sitting in her couch with her laptop, working on a draft for a blog posting about a movie which she saw at an ITU.film movie screening a few days ago. Quiet music is playing in the background, and there is a cup of hot coffee on the coffee table in front of her.

She really liked the movie as it was very deep and left the audience with room for interpretation. She knows from experience that a movie like this often fosters many different interpretations, and she thinks it would be cool if she could illustrate this by including two very different interpretations as part of her blog posting.

(Summary of the AEIOU from the narrative above)

- Activities:
  - writing a blog posting about a movie.
  - looking to include examples of different interpretations as part of the blog posting.
  - listening to music.
  - drinking coffee.
- Environments:
  - in the quiet comfort of one's own living room.
  - sitting in the couch with quiet music playing in background (relaxing and safe).
- Interactions:
  - using laptop as tool for writing blog posting.
  - drinking coffee from coffee cup on coffee table.
  - sitting in couch (provides comfortable seating).
- Objects:

- Couch.
  - Laptop.
  - Coffee table with coffee cup.
  - (other living room furniture).
- Users:
    - An ITU student or staff member who blogs about movies in her spare time. She feels relaxed and good as she is in a safe environment (at home) doing what she likes to do (write postings for her movie blog).
    - There are no other users present.

Point of View Statement

Alice, a passionate amateur movie blogger, needs inspiration for her upcoming blog posting about a movie recently screened by ITU.film. Alice strives to improve her blogging skills for every posting she makes, and while she agrees that practice makes perfect, she also sees great opportunity in studying the work of fellow movie bloggers. Unfortunately Alice does not have any friends who share her passion for movie blogging, and this frustrates her as her hobby is a big part of her identity.

How Might We Question

1. Amp up the good: How might we create a platform for movie bloggers to share ideas and learn from each other?
  - a. Ideate: include blogging functionality such that a user of the ITU.film website can publish a blog posting tied to a screening event page (either embedded directly in the ITU.film website or alternatively by linking to an external blog)
2. Reframe the bad into good & Diminish the bad: How might we add a social aspect to (amateur) movie blogging?
  - a. Ideate: host meet-ups for movie bloggers and movie enthusiasts. Either ITU.film can host the events (and obviously publish event information on the website), or one could let movie bloggers arrange their own meet-ups and simply allow them to advertise the events on a dedicated section of the ITU.film website.

Part 2 - Wireframes

Desktop Wireframes

I include my desktop wireframes in this document for completeness. However, as it required downscaling to make the wireframes fit on an A4 document, I've also uploaded full scale versions here:

- Home:

- Movies:

“Less than 100 Words” Description of How Layout Meets User Needs

The Home page lets the ITU.film team post news and highlights the most recent content from the other subpages, namely upcoming screenings and recent blog postings.

The Movies allows the user to check the screening schedule for a given month. Moreover it displays recommended movies as requested by the ITU.film representative.

The Blogs page adds (another) social aspect to the movie experience. It allows users to blog about movies/series, and it adds a comment section for discussion. On top of this, a user can rate other users posts to facilitate learning and competition.

The wireframe shows the layout of the film.itu.dk homepage. At the top, there's a header bar with three colored dots (red, yellow, green) on the left, followed by the URL 'http://film.itu.dk'. On the right of the header are navigation links: 'Home' (highlighted in orange), 'Movies', 'Blogs', 'About', and a 'Login' section with fields for 'Username' and 'Password' and a 'Sign Up' link. Below the header is a large rectangular area labeled 'Banner or Featured Movie / Article' with a placeholder image featuring a large 'X'.

At the bottom of the page, there are social media sharing icons for Facebook and Twitter, and an email link: 'info@film.itu.dk'.

The wireframe illustrates a user interface for a movie screening website. At the top, there's a header bar with three colored circles (red, yellow, green) on the left, followed by the URL "http://film.itu.dk/movies". To the right of the URL are navigation links: "Home" (gray), "Movies" (orange, currently selected), "Blogs" (gray), and "About" (gray). Further right are input fields for "Username" and "Password" with a "Login" button, and a link "Not yet a member? Sign Up".

A large, empty rectangular area below the header is labeled "Banner or Featured Movie / Screening".

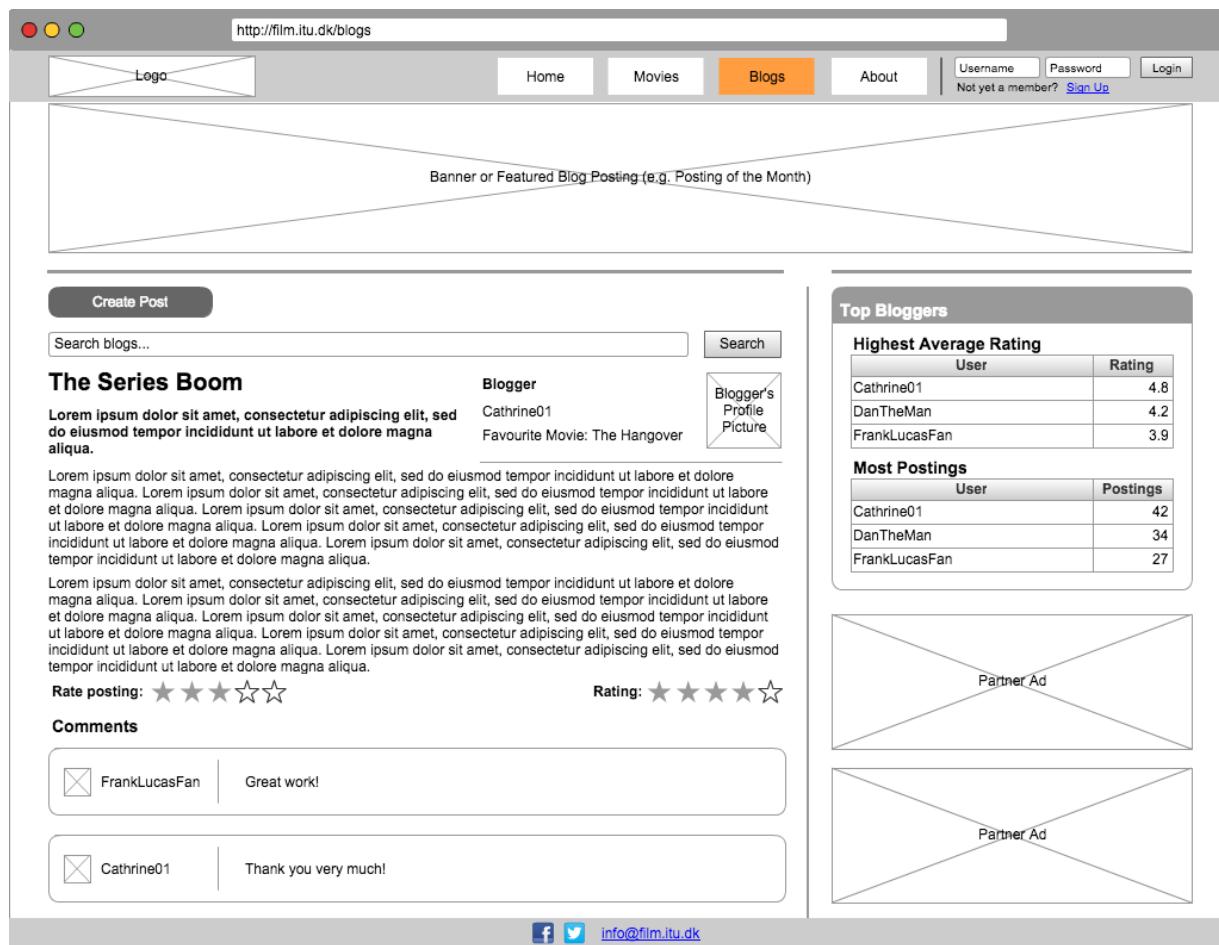

The main content area is divided into two columns. The left column is titled "Screenings" and contains a date range selector ("March" dropdown, "2015" dropdown). It lists three movie entries:

- Gladiator
- Date and time: 20th March 2015, 16:00

- Date and time: 30th March 2015, 17:00

The right column is titled "Recommendations" and includes a filter section with "Genre (optional)" and mood checkboxes for "Angry", "Sad", "Sour" (checked), and "Happy". It also has a "Recommended by:" section with "All" and "Friends" radio buttons, and an "Apply" button. Below this are three recommendation cards:

- Gladiator

"Just what I needed when I was feeling moody."

- American Gangster

Lorem ipsum dolor sit amet, consectetur adipiscing elit...
- The Hangover
- by Cathrine01
"I was feeling kinda sour, but then I watched this!"

At the bottom of the page are social media sharing icons for Facebook and Twitter, and an email link "info@film.itu.dk".

Mobile Wireframes

I include my mobile wireframes in this document for completeness. However, as it required downscaling to make the wireframes fit on an A4 document, I've also uploaded full scale versions here:

- Home:
<http://itu.dk/people/janv/courses/frwaw-f2015/project/wireframes/mobile/home.png>
- Movies:
<http://itu.dk/people/janv/courses/frwaw-f2015/project/wireframes/mobile/movies.png>
- Blogs:
<http://itu.dk/people/janv/courses/frwaw-f2015/project/wireframes/mobile/blogs.png>

“Less than 100 Words” Description of How Layout Meets User Needs

My mobile pages have been designed to be aware of the limited screen space. They use folding elements and only highlight the most important details when items are displayed in a list. More information is available by clicking a list item, which should take the user to a subpage dedicated to that item, and that item only. An ad for the next show has been placed such that it is the first thing the user will see. This was done in order to facilitate on the go “is there anything on tonight”-style questions.

Feature Answering “How Might we...” Question

The desktop version of the “blogs” page answers the question “How might we create a platform for movie bloggers to share ideas and learn from each other?”:

- A user can publish her blog post to the ITU.film website.
- Other users may rate the blog post, allowing the blogger to get an idea of what other people think of her work.
- A comment section facilitates discussion and socializing.

Part 3 - Visual Design

I include my visual design mockups in this document for completeness. However, as it required downscaling to make the mockups fit on an A4 document, I've also uploaded full scale versions here:
